In 2014, VOXX's Klipsch brand became a founding member of The WiSA Association and at the 2015 Consumer Electronics Show, debuted its first Reference Premiere Wireless Home Theater speakers. Since then, Klipsch has launched several products, leveraging this partnership and utilizing the WiSA compliance test specification to deliver premium audio products to its loyal worldwide consumers. Given WiSA's expansion both in the home theater industry and across various channels and markets, VOXX International Corporation has expanded this alliance to now include all global brands.

By expanding our partnership with WiSA, we will be in a better position to leverage WiSA's resources and technological capabilities, while broadening potential distribution channels on a global scale. We look forward to working more closely with the association to enhance our offerings and delivering best-in-class solutions for our customers and retail partners."

The audio industry has been evolving, working to improve the home theater experience, delivering high-performance sound, features and designs, delivering new wireless, Bluetooth and multimedia streaming solutions to consumers who covet this at affordable prices. Ensuring interoperability has been critical and WiSA is at the heart of this movement. Today, The WiSA Association consists of more than 30-member brands, including the world's top manufacturers and resellers of audio products, who remain devoted to developing and promoting the adoption of WiSA-certified products worldwide.

"VOXX is such an important component of the consumer electronics and high-end audio marketplaces both nationally and internationally," said Tony Ostrom, president of WiSA. "The potential for certified product offerings is endless, and we look forward to working with them to make interoperable audio products that span the company's portfolio.
